SCHOOL TEACHER WARNED

A White Cap Notice Pasted on the Lawson Heights School House, for the Teacher, Will Brown.

Will Brown, the school teacher on Lawson Heights, is considerably worked up over a white-cap notice he got yesterday morning. A few days ago Brown had occasion to whip a couple of refractory pupils. They disobeyed school rules and, from all accounts, deserved the punishment they received. Yesterday morning when Mr. Brown went to the school house he found a written notice pasted on the door. It condemned him for thrashing the boys and warned him that if he punished any more pupils in a similar manner he would be taken out and given a taste of the whip himself—in other words, would be white-capped. The notice was signed, "The Young Men of the Hill."

Mr. Brown is considerably worked up over the matter. He proposes to go ahead and do his duty, however, and if any pupils need a thrashing they will get it. He will be ready to give a white-capping crowd a warm reception.

THE SOCIALISTS

Indignant Over the Extensive Preparations Made for the Reception of the Czar.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The socialists of this city are indignant at the extensive preparations that are being made for the reception of the czar. Friday the dead walls and other places were decorated with flaming red bills signed by the Socialists Baudin, Vaillant and Walter, all members of the chamber of deputies, and others prominent in the party, denouncing the tyranny of the ruler of Russia. As soon as the police learned of the bills men were detailed to go about the city and destroy them.

The Parisians generally are greatly incensed at the action of the socialists. The city is rapidly filling with visitors.

It will soon be impossible for late comers to find accommodations. The enthusiasm of the French people over the visit of the czar has seldom been equaled even by this enthusiastic people.

SIXTY STUDENTS

Poisoned From Eating Tainted Fish—Fifteen Seriously Ill.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 3.—Fifteen students and Dr. M. F. J. Albrecht, a professor of Concordia college are hovering between life and death as the result of eating tainted fish Tuesday night. There were 60 students who were made ill, but all but 15 are in a fair way to recover.

Concordia college is a Lutheran institution, and has upwards of 200 students from all portions of the west and northwest.

An attempt was made to get the names of those who were poisoned, but the authorities of the college would not divulge them, as they said it would only cause unnecessary alarm.

Dr. D. J. Hayes, the physician of the college, said that the condition of Albrecht and 15 of the students was serious, but that he had hopes that they would ultimately recover.

A $5,000,000 FIRE.

Two-Thirds of the Town of Janel, Jamaica, Destroyed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The steamer Andes, which arrived Friday afternoon from Jamaica ports, brings news of the great fire which destroyed two-thirds of the town of Janel, on September 19, 20 and 21. At 10 o'clock in the morning the alarm of fire was given and every effort was made at once to have it extinguished. The fire originated on the hill near the Cathedral and completely destroyed that edifice. The flames burned seaward and burned all the houses and stores between the hill and the sea. No water could be obtained at any time during the fire, which raged from Saturday morning until Tuesday night, when the Andes left. On that night the fire was still smoldering. The loss sustained is estimated at $5,000,000. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

MINING TOWN

In Arizona Almost Entirely Washed Away by a Cloudburst.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 3.—A report has just been received here that the mining town of Bisbee, Ariz., containing 2,500 inhabitants, has been almost entirely washed out by a cloudburst. The telegraph wires are down and the report can not be verified, but a serious disaster is feared as the town is located in a narrow canyon, which offers little chance of escape from floods.

Further meager reports from Benson confirm the death of Mrs. Ashburn and her children, Mrs. Zolt and her two boys and four Mexicans. The wires are still down and the railway tracks are washed out in many places. The property loss will be heavy.

FIRST NATIONAL

Bank of Joseph, Ore., Entered and Robbed by Three Men.

The Cashier and Customers Told to Throw Up Their Hands.

Two Thousand Dollars Taken From the Vault—As the Robbers Left the Bank Around Customers Opened Fire—One Killed and Another Wounded.

LA GRANDE, Ore., Oct. 3.—The First National bank, of Joseph, Wallawa county, was robbed of $2,000 by three men, one of whom is dead and another badly wounded, while the third is being pursued by a posse of citizens.

At the time of the hold-up there were four customers in the bank.

Cashier McCully had occasion to go to the vault. When he came back and looked up he was confronted with a shotgun in the hands of a robber and told to throw up his hands. The customers had already complied with the request, and he did likewise.

One of the robbers leaped over the railing and opened a private door, through which the men were made to pass, and then lined up against the wall.

One robber took a position at the door and compelled all passers-by to halt and throw up their hands.

In the meantime the third robber had gone into the vault, taking all the coin and currency, even to nickels, and placed them in a sack. He then demanded from McCully the keys to the private boxes and ransacked them.

By this time the report of the bank being robbed had reached the citizens, several of whom armed themselves and awaited the appearance of the robbers.

As the robbers made their exit from the bank, Alexander Donnelly, a young man, opened fire on them. He killed one robber instantly and wounded another, hitting him twice. The third robber had the sack containing the coin and succeeded in reaching his horse, which was standing near by.

He did not succeed in mounting his horse until he had dropped his gun, and then, getting on, went up over the hills toward Prairie creek; afterward turning toward Cornucopia.

The robber killed was named Brown, while the one who escaped was Cy Fitzgugh.

THE DARDANELLES.

The Formation of a Flotilla of Ten Torpedo Boats Ordered to Defend It.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—An irade has been issued by the Porte ordering the formation of a flotilla of ten torpedo boats to defend the Dardanelles. This movement is in conformity with the advice of the Russian general, Tschikatcheff, commander of the district of Odessa, who some time in July last inspected the defense of the Dardanelles.

Letters received here from Kharput give terrible details of the massacre which recently occurred at Engin, in the Kharput district, in which the letters alleges 2,000 persons were killed. The scenes, according to the letters, were similar to those of the former massacres in Anatolia.

A drunken Turkish officer swaggered through the streets of Galata on September 30, brandishing his sword and showering foul abuse upon Armenians, everyone of whom, he declared, ought to be killed. He was finally disarmed by the military and taken to his barracks.

THE NEW COLT

Machine Gun Will be Used Exclusively on the Warships for That Class of Ordnance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—As a result of the final test of machine guns which has been in progress at the Washington navy yard this week, the new Colt will hereafter be used exclusively on the warships for this class of ordnance, thus confirming the decision reached by the chief of ordnance last December. The latest test was due to an appeal made for the Maxim and Hotchkiss guns after the former trial. The Colt fired 400 shots in 53 seconds and subsequently discharged 2,111 consecutive rounds before overheating. While the rival guns were credited with higher rates for shorter periods they could not be kept in order for long periods. The navy will at once order 50 of the new weapons.

We understand that Judge Thompson said there is plenty of money if it was only in circulation. Suppose the ring-leaders of the gold bugs in this city put even a part of that in circulation they owe the people. Such a statement comes with bad taste from these men whose victims will be called upon to vote for the party whose officials have winked at the crime of men who have robbed them. Gentlemen, your creditors would be glad if you would start this money in circulation.

"Mr. Ernest Rihem, of Cincinnati, who is now here representing the leather trust in the Padan cases is, an old-line Democrat, born and bred in the faith. He says frankly that he will never vote for Bryan, and that the only thing he has yet to decide is whether to vote for McKinley or Palmer."—Blade.

He should vote for McKinley, as he is the only candidate of the trusts that has a chance of being elected. We are glad that the Blade announces that he is the attorney of a trust. There is this consolation that the trusts and their agents and attorneys are few and the people many.

The Republican committee in this county has money to burn. The demonstration from this city to Jackson last Saturday did not cost less than $1,000. Red fire and Standard oil in torchlight processions, carried by hired men and coerced laborers, will not win the votes of a free people. The great mass of the common people will, on election day, rally to the standard of the man who dares to denounce the enemies of the people, whose devotees, agents and attorneys have confiscated millions of wealth produced by the common people.

"The Blade also published the fact that there had been, up to the time of going to press Thursday evening, no arrangements for free ferrriage, at least the office in this city knew nothing of any such arrangement."—Blade.

The Blade is in the employ of the trusts, syndicates and corporations. No one wonders that it helps to mislead the people. The C. & O. is doing all it can by coercing its employees, officers and agents to annoy and retard the triumphal march of Bryan across the United States. We had the promise of the C. & O. ferry, but the offer was withdrawn from headquarters. They did the same thing at Ironton. This corporation tried to wring from its patrons, because they were in favor of silver, an extortionate excursion rate. Along the river the boats came to the relief of the people and carried them at less than one-third the rate demanded by the C. & O. Corporations can't run this government, and the people will so inform them next November. The C. & O. can't even bulldoze its own employees, and when it seeks to enforce the absence of free silverites from Bryan meetings it is only digging its own grave. The boats on the Ohio prevent its robbing the people, and business men along the Ohio should give them their patronage. People don't exist by the suffrage of corporations, but corporations do exist at the suffrage of the people. They should respect the will of their Creator, and by the eternal, as Jackson said, they will be made to do so.

Straight from the shoulder. The charges made by the traducers of Mr. Neal fall harmless at the feet of one of his standing in the tenth district: Ironton, O., Sept. 3, 1896.

Mr. Thos. Cooper, Waterloo, O.

My Dear Sir:—I am informed that one of the speakers of the gold bug meeting held in your village one evening this week stated as the reasons why I am supporting the free silver party in this political campaign is because I own "a $80,000 interest in a western silver mine and that I expect to pay off a large mortgage if Bryan is elected by one-half the amount the mortgage calls for." I denounce both these statements as absolutely and unqualifiedly false, and the man who made them as a wicked and malicious violator of the ninth commandment. I do not now, nor did I ever, own any interest whatever in any silver or gold mine (I would be glad to if it was a paying mine) nor have I any relatives or personal friends who do. The only mortgage upon any of my property is to a building association (of which Mr. R. B. Miller is the attorney). This was on the property when I purchased it and I am paying it off under the rules of the association, there being now unpaid less than $800. This political contest is one of the masses; the people against the classes, the plutocrats. It is the millionaires, the huge corporations, the money sharks on the one hand, and the wage-workers, the farmers, the people in short, on the other hand.

I have taken my stand where I have always stood—with the people, against Wall street. I cannot conscientiously do otherwise. God helping me, I shall vote for Bryan, because I regard him as the best representative of the highest good to the people of our country. For the same reason I shall vote for my old friend, Joe Cooper, for congress. With best wishes, your friend, HENRY S. NEAL.

I have been called an anarchist because I have opposed the trusts and syndicates which would manage this country. I am glad to have the opposition of these men. I am glad that if I am elected there is not a trust or syndicate that can come to me and say: "We put you there, now pay us back."—William Jennings Bryan.

BRYAN'S SAYINGS.

Extracts from the Philadelphia Speech of the Democratic Candidate.

"The agitation of free coinage will never cease in this country until the gold standard is driven back to England."

"Every enemy of good government is against free silver. You can know a cause as you can know an individual, by the company that it keeps."

"Our record is clear. The democratic party never declared for a gold standard and no man in office ever agitated a gold standard after he was elected until he betrayed the people who elected him."

"When I find that my conscience will not permit me to carry out the platform on which I was elected I will resign and let some other man have the office."

"I deny the right of any public servant to secure office upon a partisan platform and then abandon the platform. My friends, I was reared in a different school of democracy."

"I do not use the word goldbug in an offensive sense. I use the word in that same kindly spirit in which the goldbugs use the word lunatic when they speak of me."

"I would rather have it said that I lacked dignity than to have it said that I lacked backbone to meet the enemies of this government who conspire against this nation's welfare in Wall street."

"My friends, our opponents tell you that I am very radical. I am a conservative man. These goldbugs who think I am radical, so the paper says, have joined with the populists of Texas who think that I am not radical enough."

"I believe that the time has come when the people should refuse to be held up and sandbagged by a few men who assume that money is more precious than humanity."

"They say that the craze is dying out. I care not what they call the silver cause, you may apply to it such epithets as you will, but I know that the silver cause will not die because truth never dies."

"I am willing to submit any question to the American people but I am not willing to submit the destinies of the American people to foreign nations beyond the reach of our ballot to whom we must go on bended knees, begging."

"Did the republican party tell you how you was going to get foreign nations to help us? No. Did it tell you why after 20 years they have failed to help us when we asked it of them? No. But they simply left it until—until—until."

"There is not an influence that tried to defeat Jackson that is not to-day arrayed against the democratic ticket, and there is not a thing that the gold-standard democrats have permitted this nation to have but what Jackson would have spit upon if it had been presented before him. And then they call themselves democrats."

"I think that most people are apt to pick a real well-feathered goose when they get an opportunity, but I am opposed to the people of the United States offering themselves up as a well-feathered goose for anybody to pick."

Mr. George's opinion that the republicans are losing ground in the agricultural districts ought to be well founded. The farmer who can keep on voting himself more mortgages at high rates of interest is indeed a hopeless dunder.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

REVIEWED

Kinney, Taylor and Ryan, Three of a Kind.

Their Statements Refuted and Exploded by Their Own Circulars—People Will Decide for Themselves as to the Money Volume Necessary.

Ed. Times:—In his address at the Kendall hall in this city, on the night of the 25th inst., Secretary of State Taylor said: "It is an insult to American intelligence to say that congress did not know the contents of the bill suspending the coinage of silver dollars in 1873." And yet, it is a fact that very many of the ablest men of both parties in both houses of congress, including President Grant, who signed the bill, have said they did not know that the bill failed to include the silver dollars as one form of our money, and no member of either house, except Senator Sherman and Congressman Harper, have ever said that they knew it at the time of its passage. Nor has any newspaper ever been produced in evidence of this statement that such was the understanding at the time of the passage of this diabolical act. Is it not also an insult to the intelligence of the thousands of American newspapers to say, or imply, that they did not know anything of this special feature of the bill on coinage, weights and measures; namely, the demonetization of silver. I therefore demand of Secretary Taylor to advise the public of the name of any newspaper in all this broad land that ever said such was the purpose of the bill in question. Notwithstanding the ability and shrewdness of the great multitude of reporters kept in Washington for writing the proceedings of congress, especially of all that is seen or unlooked for, no man, not even Senator Sherman, has been able in all these twenty-three years to name a single paper that ever hinted that this bill of 1873 demonetized or suspended the coinage of silver dollars, nor can the secretary do so. I can not tell how many times the bill was read, reformed, discussed, explained, but its demonetization was not understood, unless we most unreasonably conclude that all congress and newspaper men were bribed into silence. It was a sneaking act of robbery, put through congress by the above named men on the faith reposed in them by their fellow-congressmen, as honest champions of what was considered on their statements to be a wise and prudent measure.

Again, Mr. Taylor said that the government does not back the silver dollar as it does the gold dollar; or, perhaps, it was that it would not do so under the free coinage of silver. This is an absolute falsity. The relation of the government to the silver dollar is exactly the same as its relation to the gold dollar, and nothing else is in contemplation.

He wants "a 100-cent dollar." What is a 100-cent dollar? One hundred pieces of amalgam, chiefly copper, worth less than twenty cents each, stamped "one cent." Now, if the power of law can raise twenty cents valuation to one hundred cents, can the secretary tell why the same power can not raise fifty cents worth of silver bullion to one hundred cents valuation in money? If one silver dollar is a fifty-cent dollar, your gold dollar is but a twenty-cent dollar by your own chosen terms.

Furthermore, the secretary declared that we have more money per capita than ever before. By referring to the United States treasury circulation, No. 123, page 54, you will see that each year, for fifteen years preceding this, our per capita circulation was greater than the present year.

RYAN.

Ex-Secretary Ryan—our own "Dan J."—said, "We have more money per capita than any other nation on earth." Reference to the above named circular, pages 26-7, will show that France, the Netherlands and Australia each have a larger money per capita circulation than we have. He also said: "We have more silver than any other nation on earth. Again, look at the above reference and you will see that India and China each has more silver than our nation, and that France, Spain and the Netherlands have more silver per capita than we have. "Can't make money by legislation." But Dan failed to inform us by what other process our government ever made a dollar. "Not lack of money, but lack of work to get money that has brought about the hard times." This comes with an ill-grace from a man whose many friends, largely from the industrial classes, have several times elevated him to offices with salaries from two to four times as much as he could have earned in their positions, to imply that our poverty is the result of our refusal to work. Many of us work early and late; many more can get but little to do, and have to beg for trifles of work with a pittance of remuneration to keep soul and body together, and no small numbers are the subjects of charity for want of work. Were there a reasonable sufficiency of money in circulation, there would be a greater demand for labor, and hence more necessities and comforts of life would be available, and stringency and destitution would be banished. If not, all history and political economy are entirely unreliable.

"Silver miners the only men on earth that will be benefited by free silver." How can they be benefited without the employment of labor; and will not the men now, or comparatively so at least, be benefited by the miners' dollars, though they do not have the full purchasing power of our present dollars? Again, how can the dollar be a 100-cent dollar in the hands of the miner and but a 50-cent dollar when paid to his employees? Besides, it is perfectly right that the silver miner should be compensated for his investment and toil the same as the gold miner. He is engaged in an American industry. His business, instead of sharing the benefits of Republican protection, was greatly paralyzed by the law of 1873, and to be just, that which was taken from him by law should be restored by law, and thus permit him to become a benefactor to mankind.

Fellow free silverites, do these men and other gold bugs of like disposition, ignorance and publicity, believe that we are all miserable ignoramuses, that we can't read, can't reason, have no liberty of thought? They could not well be more reckless of truth, more entirely disregarding of logic and common sense than though they did. This secretary and ex-secretary scarcely made a material statement, or attempted an argument, but what was untrue, or illogical. If goldbugism is successful in this campaign, straight-out lying, bulldozing and bribery will be responsible for the deplorable work. The money kings and official sect of Republicans and gold-laced Democrats, so called, are united in restricting our money volume, destroying our liberties and establishing a plutocracy. While all the purse-proud classes are for the gold standard, the great, plain people are for bimetalism and an independent monetary system. We, the people of labor and production, recognizing our obligations to Almighty God, do solemnly declare that we will faithfully work for the establishment of such financial policy, such right of free thought, free speech and liberty of conscience as to us seems best, without asking the consent of any other nation on earth, much less the effete old monarchies of the gold standard.

A REPUBLICAN BLOW-OUT.

They Had a Parade, Lots of Music and a Good Sized Crowd—Speeches by Thompson and Fenton.

The Republicans had another blow-out last night—a torchlight parade, brass band, drum corps, and all that. They marched around some of the principal streets awhile and then rounded up in Kendall's hall. The procession was not strikingly large, and the banners all told about that fifty-cent dollar, which is worrying Republicans just now. About forty per cent of those in the line of march were boys.

When Kendall's hall was comfortably filled, Chairman Charley Hard called the meeting to order. Charley announced John Heer as chairman of the meeting and read a long list of vice presidents and invited them to the platform. They didn't seem to like the prospect and didn't come, however. Mr. Heer then introduced Judge Thompson as "a man we all know and are proud of." The Judge was received with faint applause. It was not general at all, and the hand-clapping only lasted for a quarter of a minute. This is the same Thompson who in days gone by has bulldozed and bossed Scioto county politics and who has sought to run things with an iron hand. He is not the most popular man in the county by a long shot. His speech was full of platitudes—the same stuff every little catch-penny gold bug orator in the country is springing on the natives.

After Mr. Thompson had finished, Lucien Fenton, the little banker from Winchester, Adams county, was introduced. Then the stampede began. It is a fact, sad but true, that the only way a crowd can be persuaded to listen to Lucien is to lock the doors of the hall and chain the people in their seats. This would be the refinement of punishment. Lucien talked quite a while—or tried to talk, more correctly speaking. Personally, he is a nice gentleman, but he ought to keep his mouth shut.

A GREAT REMEDY

For Sufferers from Piles.

Dr. Redmond, a specialist in the study and treatment of piles and rectal diseases, recently stated that the Pyramid Pile Cure, the new discovery for the cure of piles, was the most remarkable remedy he had ever seen or tried in one respect, and that was the instant relief experienced in all cases, no matter how severe, from the moment the remedy was applied; this was the more surprising to him, because he had carefully analyzed the preparation and no trace of opium, cocaine or similar poison could be detected.

Physicians look with great favor upon the Pyramid Pile Cure, because it is rapidly taking the place of surgical operations and because it is so simple, so easily applied and contains no mineral or other poisons so commonly used in pile cures.

Dr. Esterbrook reports that the Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures the various forms of piles, but never fails to give immediate relief on the first application, no matter how severe the pain or discomfort may be.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that anyone can use the remedy without detention from business or interference with daily occupation. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

A GREAT GAME

Portsmouth and Maysville Play
Eight Innings Without a Score

And then the Game Had to Be Called on Account of Darkness—A Small Crowd Witnessed the Finest Exhibition of Ball Playing of the Season.

The first game this afternoon between the Maysvilles and Polos resulted in a score of 7 to 0 in favor of the home team.

The two hundred spectators who didn't care to see Bryan and who were not afraid of a little bad weather took in the ball game yesterday afternoon had the pleasure of witnessing what was in the judgment of many,
the finest exhibition of ball playing seen on the grounds this year.

The game was a remarkable one.
During the eight innings played, the Polos never got a man around to third base, while the Maysvilles only reached there once. The man who got there only lasted long enough to get out.
The outs on Maysville's side were all made by three members—catcher, first base and second base. This shows how effective Newton was. He pitched a truly phenomenal game and the locals were unable to hit him at all. They couldn't even make little infield hits off him. He has a credit for eleven strike-outs. It would have been twelve if Kellner hadn't dropped the third strike on one—just half the men who faced him fanning the air. It was the kind of a game that gave Newton the reputation he enjoys. And Sheppard—our own fat, jolly Sheppard—was not far behind. He puzzled the Maysville sluggers almost as completely as Newton did the Polos. They only hit him safely twice. One of these, which had to go down as a three-bagger to McGann's credit, would have been pulled down by Schroll, if a wagon had not been in the way. Seven of the Kentuckians fanned the air in the vain endeavor to hit their former comrade's balls.

Aside from the box, the Maysvilles put up a better game. They played without an error, while the Polos had several marked up against them.
Blackwell made a couple in rapid succession in the second, dropping Heilman's assist of Kellner's grounder, and then failing to stop McGann's hot grounder. He has not been playing as good a game lately as he is capable of playing. He needs to take a brace.

It looked in the sixth as though Maysville would score. Newton flew out to Schroll, Honeyman hit to Brooker, who let it go by. He stole second.
He tried to score on Cox's hit to Heil-man and was caught at the plate.
Kellner flew out to Turner. Things looked more equally even for the Polos in the seventh. McGann, the first man up, hit to left, and, aided by a friendly wagon, which prevented Schroll from getting it, McGann got three bases. Hall hit to Heilman and McGann was run down between third and home. Lauterbach and McShane were caught at first on assists by Heil-man.

The game was called in the eighth
on account of darkness.

BRIC-A-BRAC MEETING

Judge and Mrs. A. C. Thompson Entertain
in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mc-Farland of Los Angeles.

Judge and Mrs. A. C. Thompson entertained the Bric-a-brac and a few invited guests last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McFarland, of Los Angeles, California. A most delightful evening was spent. It was indeed a mutual pleasure for those loyal Bric-a-bracers to again be numbered as members of the Circle after an absence of eleven years. An additional enjoyment for the guests of honor was the opportunity to mingle again with their old and dearest Portsmouth friends, as such were the invited guests of the evening.

The usual annual business, which has always been the chief feature of the first meeting of the season, was dis-pens with on this occasion, and the hours until 11:30, with the exception of the short while taken up by the pleasing program, was devoted to sociability, that delightful sociability which is always evident at a Bric-a-brac meeting.

Mrs. Thompson read a few very impressive words of welcome to the California guests. One of Frank Stockton's entertaining short stories was well read and there was some enjoyable vocal and instrumental music and recitations. An elegant supper was served, and later in the evening the guests were informally entertained with other music and recitations.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

The next attraction at the Grand will be Wednesday night, October 7th.
Frank Jones, famous as "Si Perkins" and "Our Country Cousin," will be in the leading role. He will be supported by a company, every one of whom is a star. The play will be the new success, "Yankee Drummer." Mr. Jones will take the character of "Simon Hammer." Miss Lillian Walton will portray "Zana, the Gypsy." There will be four acts. Act first will present the third district school and the dance of the deacons; act second, room
in Jonas Craig's house and the robbery; act third, agricultural exhibit in the county fair at Hummerstown; and act fourth, a parlor in Anson Craig's mansion in Wheeling, W. Va., and Zanna's birthday party. The scenes of the play are located in West Virginia.

Bob Lodwick is right there when it comes to advertising an announcement enterprise. Last night he had about twenty boys employed to carry Billy Barry's banners in the Republican parade. It proved a good thing.

Frank Jones, who is to be at the Grand Wednesday night, is well known to Portsmouth people. The late D. F.
Connell was a great friend of his. He was familiar with his start in the theatrical world and was well acquainted with the scenes that were engrained into his famous play, "Si Perkins," and the characters represented were Mr. Connell's West Virginia friends and acquaintances. The Grand ought to be packed Wednesday night to see and hear Mr. Jones in his latest success, "A Yankee Drummer."

Clay Clement is to be at the Grand October 12th. He will produce "The New Dominion." Mr. Clement is known here. He gave last year at the Grand a performance that will never be forgotten. His portrayal of his part was a master-piece of acting. By it he aroused the enthusiastic admiration of the community of theater-goers.

H. W. Brown, of Jackson, well known as a showman and advertiser, is in the city. He is accompanied by a Mr. Davis of the same place, who is mastering the business under Mr.
Brown's tutelage.

The crowd realizes that Lehman's expense.

building, Mr. Draper reported that the committee had rented a room of Mr.
Hubbard and the over-crowded D grade was now comfortably provided for. The extra room costs the board $16.33 monthly.

Mr. Ives introduced a resolution for the closing of the schools for a half day on October 13th, on account of a political meeting to be held here on that date. Dr. Kline thought the schools might as well close the whole day and an amendment was offered and carried to that effect. There will be no school October 13th.

THE 96-97 SEASON

Of the Woman's Literary Club Opened Friday at All Saints Church.

The '96-'97 season of the Woman's Literary club was opened yesterday afternoon with an interesting meeting at All Saints Chapel. In the absence of the last year's president, Mrs. Esselborn, the vice president, Mrs. McClure was in the chair. The reading of the annual report of the secretary was dispensed with as Mrs. Draper had been unable to prepare the same. However, after the roll call by Miss Firmstone, which showed an attendance of thirty-seven, the minutes sent in by the secretary were read by Miss Ootton. They were the minutes of the last regular meeting of last season and of the special business meeting held last month. Mrs. Harriet C. Gates, the retiring treasurer, presented her annual report which was accepted. The president's address was then announced and Mrs. McClure gave up the chair to the new president, Mrs. Alger.

Mrs. Alger's address, written in her usual pleasing manner, clearly and concisely presented the outline of the year's work as arranged by the executive committee, "England in the Eighteenth Century." Among other valuable hints she gave suggestions as to the reading required, in order that the members may thoroughly understand the many important events in the literary and political worlds of that period, and also urged that conversation by the club be made one of the chief features of the meetings this season.

Miss Sara Reilly read an interesting paper on the subject of "Our Great Prototypes." Conversation by the club followed this paper and was entered into in a much more spirited manner than has been the case heretofore, an encouraging outlook for the much needed advancement in the "Conversational art" this winter.

Some matters of business were presented by the executive committee and an election following resulted in adding the name of Mrs. George Anderson to the associate list and the choice of Mrs. Filmore Musser and Mrs. Howard Harsha as active members. Miss Dudit was re-elected to the active list.

Owing to the fact that but few of the members were present at the special meeting last June to hear the report of Miss Ootton, delegate to the National Federation of Women's clubs at Louisville, Ky., she was requested to give a few remarks yesterday on the subject, and very kindly responded, for which the club extended to her an unanimous vote of thanks.

Further Intelligence of the Great Hurricane Tuesday.

The Property Damaged in the State Will Foot Up a Million Dollars.

Fully One Hundred Lives Were Lost and Perhaps Ten Thousand People Were Rendered Homeless—Fire Broke Out at Cedar Keys.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 3.—The West India hurricane struck Florida Tuesday and though it lasted but three hours at each point visited, was the most disastrous storm experienced in Florida. The damage to property in the state alone will foot up a million dollars. Fully a hundred lives were lost and perhaps 10,000 people were rendered homeless. The course of the storm was from Cedar Keys on the gulf coast, north by north-east to and through the thriving town of Lake City. Through a path fifty miles wide, few houses were left standing, the wind at times blowing at the rate of one hundred miles an hour, averaging 80. In this city, distant from storm center fully fifty miles, the wind for a minute blew one hundred miles an hour and for five minutes seventy miles an hour. In Jacksonville scores of buildings were unroofed and trees blown down. The storm had the characteristics of a tornado. It skipped some places in its path, bounding over to others where ruin was wrought. Cedar Keys was exposed to the full force of its fury. There a score of fishermen on the sponge banks were drowned and their vessels were wrecked. A tidal wave visited the town and inundated it. During the tidal wave a fire broke out and an unusual spectacle was witnessed of firemen fighting flames almost shoulder deep in water. Four miles of trestling of the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad, entering the town was wrecked. Lake City had almost every tree in town blown down, and for two days the streets were impassable. Two people were killed—a prominent lady, Mrs. Frazier, and a Negro boy. Here many houses were razed, while roofs of others went whirling through the air. Lake City is in Columbia county, which has great lumber interests. Half the yellow pine timber was blown down and lumber and turpentine men lost thousands of dollars, as the lumber is badly splintered and will soon be attacked by worms.

In Baker county, which adjoins Columbia, not a score of houses out of a thousand were left standing. Grain stored in barns was blown away or destroyed by rain, crops in the fields, including cotton, were destroyed and thousands of cattle were killed. The immense lumber mill of Eppinger & Russell, at Olustee, was destroyed, including stores and residences, and many people were hurt, though none were killed, the reason being that they sought refuge in a deep ditch traversing the town.

At MacClenny, in the same county, the same tale might be told. Sanderson, a few miles distant, was almost wiped out. All of the men employed in the turpentine farms and lumber mills are not only homeless but without food and a famine there is impending.

The prominent citizens of each of these towns have organized relief committees, and have issued appeals to the public for aid.

Hilliards, in Duval county, was also devastated and people killed and wounded by falling of houses upon them. Each of these has issued an appeal for aid.

The storm did not touch the orange belt of Florida, but confined itself to the middle section, where the chief industries are lumber, turpentine, cotton raising and general farming. Coming as the storm did, just after harvesting the people rendered homeless and without food will be a charge upon charity for fully six months.

DREARY STORY

Of Devastation by the Storm in the Suwannee River Country.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—A letter from Gainesville, Fla., dated October 1, says:

B. F. Hampton and Maginnis, who have just returned from the Suwannee river country tell a dreary story of the devastation there. Fully 90 per cent. of the timber is down and 50 per cent. of the residences and farm buildings have been destroyed. The damage does not stop there. In Lafayette county the valuable cedar forests are lost. Stock has been killed by hundreds. All crops have been destroyed. Hundreds of people are in distress, no home and nothing to eat.

Gen. Finley for Vice President. COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 3.—A plan is on foot here to have Gen. E. B. Finley, of Bucyrus, O., put on the national ticket for vice president in case both Sewall and Watson retire, as it is said they are likely to do. Finley has always been a free silver advocate and was one of the delegates at large to the late Chicago convention. He has been a member of congress, and under Gov. Hoard was adjutant general of the state.

There is nothing in the world so good to take to make you well and strong as Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Testimonials by thousands from all classes of people have been published, showing its marvelous effects in making the sick well, the weak strong, and now our clergymen have become interested and for the people's good urge them to use this wonderful cure, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, in order to get well, for they are convinced that it is the most valuable medicine in the world to-day.

Rev. E. J. Miller, of Albion, N. Y., the eminent divine, who represents the Boston Tremont Temple Society as missionary to India, was broken down with overwork, liver trouble and malaria, and is now on vacation, in search of health, has found both health and strength in the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura. He says:

"I returned to America broken in health, with a bad catarrh, neuralgia and stomach and liver trouble. The whole top of my head felt numb, so that at times I was robbed of my thinking powers, and could not do any work with ease. Having consulted a number of doctors and taken their medicines, I received no relief whatever.

"I was induced to try Dr. Greene's Nervura, which worked like a charm and produced the longest-for results. My head and whole system is now clean from catarrh, neuralgia and fever. I can now study and do my work with satisfaction. In fact, I feel like a new man in health and strength. "I therefore feel it my duty and great pleasure to recommend this excellent remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura, which certainly has done so much for me."

Rev. F. H. Buffum, of Winchester, N. H., who is Grand Army Chaplain for New Hampshire, says:

"The remedial effect of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy on the weakness and nervous prostration of my wife, was so positive and speedy that we can heartily testify to its undoubted merits."

Presiding Elder Rev. J. W. Walker, of Port Dodge, Iowa; Rev. C. D. R. Meacham, pastor Baptist Church, Townsend, Vt.; Rev. G. L. Wells, of Hardwick, Vt.; Rev. Henry Langford, of Weston, Vt., and many other well-known ministers of the Gospel in all parts of the country, all of whom have been cured by this great remedy, enthusiastically urge the people to use Dr. Greene's Nervura by all means, if they wish to be sure of a cure, for health and strength always follow its use.

Remember that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is no common patent medicine, but the prescription of one of our best-known physicians, the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, hence the medicine is of necessity perfectly adapted to cure. Dr. Greene also can be consulted free, personally or by letter, in regard to any case.

A TRAIN

Held Up on the Atlantic and Pacific in New Mexico.

One of the Robbers Shot and Killed by a United States Marshal.

The Bandits Then Began an Indiscriminate Fire—The Express Car Safe Was Hewn Open and Rifled, But the Robbers Secured No Money.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 3.—Atlantic and Pacific officials in this city have been advised that the westbound passenger train, No. 2, due here at 8:45 p. m., has been held up by five outlaws near Rio Puerco bridge. U. S. Marshal Loomis, who was a passenger on board, is reported to have shot and killed Cole Young, one of the robbers, directly after the train was stopped. Young's companions thereupon began shooting indiscriminately. A ter terrifying the passengers and train hands into submission the robbers cut the express car and engine from the train and ran them up the track a few hundred yards. An explosion followed and it is supposed that the express car safe was blown open. A special train has been dispatched from this city to the scene of the hold up. No further information is to be had at this hour.

The held-up passenger train from the west just came in at midnight. Conductor Sam Heady states that when the train reached the Rio Puerco tank Engineer Ross said that a pin in the engine was out of gear, but he thought he could go up the divide. The conductor thought not, and just as the engineer was about to fix the pin three masked men jumped on the engine, when the shooting commenced.

A lantern was shot out of the hands of the brakeman, after which the engineer was told to uncouple the engine and express car from the train.

Deputy United States Marshal Loomis, who has been down in Arizona on the trail of Southern New Mexico bandits, was on his return to this city, and he left the smoking car when the first shot was fired. He took deliberate aim at one of the robbers, shooting him through the head. The man ran 100 yards and dropped dead. The other robbers retreated to the Malpais, where their voices calling for their comrades could be heard.

Conductor Heady states that Loomis remained at Rio Puerco, expecting the robbers to return for their dead companion, while Selvy met the posse of officers at Atlantic and Pacific Junction, and returned with the party to Rio Puerco.

The hold-up was a failure financially, the robbers securing no money.

Loomis thinks that the hold-ups are the same gang that robbed the Separ post office a few weeks ago and have been terrorizing the southern part of New Mexico, and that Young was the leader.

THE THREE CORRESPONDENTS.

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

AN INCIDENT OF THE SOUDAN CAMPAIGN.

(Copyright, 1896, by A. Conan Doyle.)

SYNOPSIS.

Three correspondents of London newspapers, Mortimer, of the Intelligence, Scott, of the Courier, and Anerley, of the Gazette, are riding with their servants near the Nile during the heat of the day. Mortimer and Scott are veteran correspondents. Anerley is a novice. The veterans have provided themselves with swift polo ponies. Anerley has an old hack, and his lack of experience is discussed by his companions who remind him that he will be left behind in the race for the telegraph station, if a battle takes place. Incidentally Anerley learns that in a contest of thirty miles or more the swiftest camels of the desert always defeat a horse. Merryweather, the engineer in chief of the railway, rides by to the front on pressing business. Presently Anerley, while the others are asleep, sees him returning in haste. Merryweather rides down into a little hollow, and does not reappear. A puff of smoke indicates that he has been shot by ambushed dervishes. Anerley awakens Mortimer and Scott.

PART III.

"And Reuter not here!" cried the two veterans, exultantly clutching at their notebooks. "Merryweather shot! Where? When? How?"

In a few words Anerley explained what he had seen.

"You heard nothing?"

"Nothing."

"Well, a shot loses itself very easily among rocks. By George, look at the buzzards!"

Two large brown birds were soaring in the deep blue heaven. As Scott spoke they circled down and dropped into the little khor.

"That's good enough," said Mortimer with his nose between the leaves of his book. "Merryweather headed dervishes stop returned stop shot mutilated stop raid communications. How's that?"

"You think he was headed off?"

"Why else should he return?"

"In that case, if they were out in front of him and others cut him off, there must be several small raiding parties."

"I should judge so."

"How about the mutilated?"

"I've fought against Arabs before."

"Where are you off to?"

"Sarras."

"I think I'll race you in," said Scott. Anerley stared in astonishment at the absolutely impersonal way in which these men regarded the situation. In their zeal for news it had apparently never struck them that they, their camp and their servants, were all in the lion's mouth. But even as they talked there came the harsh inopportune rat-tat-tat of an irregular volley from among the rocks, and the high keening whistle of bullets over their heads. A palm spray fluttered down amongst them. At the same instant the six frightened servants came running wildly in for protection.

It was the cool-headed Mortimer who organized the defense, for Scott's Celtic soul was so aflame at this "copy" in hand and more to come that he was too exuberantly boisterous for a commander. The other with his spectacles and his stern face soon had the servants in hand.

"Tali henna! Egri! What the devil are you frightened about? Put the camels between the palm trunks. That's right. Now get the knee-tethers on them. Quies! Did you never hear bullets before? Now put the donkeys here. Not much—you don't get my polo-pony to make a zebra with. Picket the ponies between the grove and the river out of danger's way. These fellows seem to fire even higher than they did in '85."

"That's got home, anyhow," said Scott, as they heard a soft splashing thud like a stone in a mud-bank.

"Who's hit then?"

"The brown camel that's chewing the cud."

As he spoke the creature, its jaws still working, laid its long neck along the ground and closed its dark eyes.

"That shot cost me fifteen pounds," said Mortimer, ruefully. "How many of them do you make?"

"Four, I think."

"Only four bezingers at any rate; there may be some spearsmen."

"I think not; it is a little raiding party of riflemen. By the way, Anerley, you've never been under fire before, have you?"

"Never," said the young pressman, who was conscious of a feeling of nervous elation.

"Love and poverty and war, they are all experiences necessary to make a complete life. Pass over the cartridges. This is a mild baptism that you are undergoing, for behind these camels you are as safe as if you were sitting in the back room of the Authors' Club."

"As safe, but hardly as comfortable," said Scott. "A long glass of hock and seltzer would be exceedingly acceptable. But, oh, Mortimer, what a chance! Think of the general's feelings when he hears that the first action of the war has been fought by the press column. Think of Reuter, who has been stewing at the front for a week! Think of the evening pennies just too late for the fun! By George, that slug brushed a mosquito off me!"

"And one of the donkeys is hit."

"This is sinful. It will end in our having to carry our own kits to Khartoum."

"Never mind, my boy, it all goes to make copy. I can see the headlines—'Raid on Communications.' 'Murder of British Engineer.' 'Press Column Attacked.' 'Won't it be ripping?'"

"I wonder what the next line will be," said Anerley.

"Our Special Wounded," cried Scott, rolling over on to his back. "No harm done," he added, gathering himself up again; "only a chip off my knee. This is getting sultry. I confess that the idea of that back room at the Authors' club begins to grow upon me."

"I have some dandy-lion."

"Afterwards will do. We're having a 'appy day with Fuzzy on the rush. I wish he would rush."

"They're coming nearer."

"This is an excellent revolver of mine if it didn't throw so devilish high. I always aim at a nun's toes if I want to stimulate his digestion. O Lord, there's our kettle gone!"

With a boom like a dinner gong a Remington bullet had passed through the kettle and a cloud of steam hissed up from the fire. A wild shout came from the rocks above.

"The idiots think that they have blown us up. They'll rush us now as sure as fate; then it will be our turn to lead. Got your revolver, Anerley?"

"I have this double-barreled fowl-pipe-ice."

"Sensible man! It's the best weapon in the world at this sort of rough-and-tumble work. What cartridges?"

"Swan-shot."

"That will do all right. I carry this big bore double-barreled pistol loaded with slugs. You might as well try to stop one of these fellows with a prashooter as with a service revolver."

"There are ways and means," said Scott. "The Geneva convention does not hold south of the first cataract. It's easy to make a bullet mushroom by a little manipulation of the tip of it. When I was in the broken square at Tamaï—"

"Wait a bit," cried Mortimer, adjusting his glasses. "I think they are coming now."

"The time," said Scott, snapping up his watch, "being exactly seventeen minutes past four."

Anerley had been lying behind a camel staring with an interest which bordered upon fascination at the rocks opposite. There was a little woolly puff of smoke, and there was another one, but never once had they caught a glimpse of the attackers. To him there was something weird and awesome in these unseen persistent men who, minute by minute, were drawing closer to them. He had heard them cry out when the kettle was broken, and once immediately afterwards an enormously strong voice had roared something which had set Scott shuddering his shoulders.

"They've got to take us first," said he, and Anerley thought his nerve might be better if he did not ask for a translation.

The firing had begun at a distance of some hundred yards, which put it out of the question for them, with their lighter weapons, to make any reply to it. Had their antagonists continued to keep that range the defenders must either have made a hopeless sally or tried to shelter themselves behind their zebra asbest they might on the chance that the sound might bring up help. But, luckily for them, the African and not taken kindly to the rifle, and his primitive instinct to close with his enemy is always too strong for his sense of strategy. They were drawing in, therefore, and now for the first time Anerley caught sight of a face looking at them from over a rock. It was a huge, virile, strong-jawed head of a pure negro type, with silver trinkets gleaming in the ears. The man raised a great arm from behind the rock and shook his Remington at them.

"Shall I fire?" asked Anerley.

"No, no, it is too far; your shot would scatter all over the place."

"It's a picturesque ruffian," said Scott. "Couldn't you kodak him, Mortimer? There's another!"

A fine-featured brown Arab, with a black pointed beard, was peeping from behind another boulder. He wore the green turban which proclaimed him hajji, and his face showed the keen nervous exaltation of the religious fanatic.

"They seem a piebald crowd," said Scott.

"That last is one of the real fighting Baggara," remarked Mortimer. "He's a dangerous man."

"He looks pretty vicious. There's another negro!"

"Two more! Dingas by the look of them. Just the same chaps we get our black battalions from. As long as they get a fight they don't mind who it's for. But if the idiots had only sense enough to understand they would know that the Arab is their hereditary enemy and we their hereditary friends. Look at the silly jugglers gnashing his teeth at the very men who put down the slave trade!"

"Couldn't you explain?"

"I'll explain with this pistol when he comes a little nearer. Now sit tight, Anerley. They're off!"

They were, indeed. It was the brown man with the green turban who headed the rush. Close to his heels was the negro with silver earrings—a giant of a man, and the other two were only a little behind. As they sprang over the rocks one after the other it took Anerley back to the school sports when he held the tape for the hurdle race. It was magnificent, the wild spirit and abandon of it, the flutter of the chequered galabehs, the gleam of steel, the wave of black arms, the frenzied faces, the quick pitter-patter of the rushing feet. The law-abiding Briton is so imbued with the idea of the sanctity of the human life that it was hard for the young pressman to realize that these men had every intention of killing him, and that he was at perfect liberty to do as much for them. He lay staring as if this were a show and he a spectator.

"Now, Anerley, now! Take the Arab!" cried somebody.

He put up the gun and saw the brown fierce face at the other end of the barrel. He tugged at the trigger, but the face grew larger and fiercer with every stride. Again and again he tugged. A revolver shot rang out at his elbow, then another one, and he saw a red spot spring out on the Arab's brown breast. But he was still coming on.

"Shoot, you ass, shoot!" screamed Scott.

Again he strained unavailingly at the trigger. There were two more pistol shots, and the big negro had fallen and risen and fallen again.

"Cook it, you fool!" shouted a furious voice, and at the same instant, with a rush and flutter, the Arab bounded over the prostrate camel and came down with his bare feet upon Anerley's chest. In a dream he seemed to be struggling frantically with some one upon the ground, then he was conscious of a tremendous explosion in his very face, and so ended for him the first action of the war.

A WAR REMINISCENCE.

Scenes at Hatcher's Creek and Petersburg Recalled.

John B. Scace Speaks to a Reporter of Stirring Scenes—Escaped with a Slight Wound, but, Like Other Veterans, Has Suffered Since—A Story that Reads Like a Page from History.

From the Albany, N. Y., Journal.

When one encounters in print the life story of some snarled veteran of the civil war a feeling of admiration and sympathy is the certain result. Accustomed though we are to tales of heroism and suffering in everyday life, there is something peculiarly attractive about these old war records, serving, as they do, as a sacred passport to the heart of every true American. Thousands found their rest on the field of carnage or in the hospital, but their comrades, when the struggle was over and the victory won, returned to their homes and began anew the battle of life.

John B. Scace, the widely known contractor and building master of Albany, N. Y., has had an unusually interesting life, and when seen by a reporter recently at his home, No. 15 Bedford Street, told of his many experiences and adventures while serving under the old flag in the late war. Although having endured all the hardships and privations of life in the ranks, Mr. Scace bears his more than half century of years with an elastic step and a keen mind, taking an active interest in private and public affairs.

While still a boy, his family moved from Albany, his birthplace, to Pittsfield, Mass., and here he was educated. He mastered the carpenter's trade, became a member of Berkshire Lodge, No. 52, I. O. O. F., and was engaged in the building business in Pittsfield, where the country the world sped, and excitement ran high. All the old-time patriotism that had made Massachusetts famous in Revolutionary days was fired to its utmost. Every town and village sent out its squad or company.

The company in which Mr. Scace enlisted in September of 1862, was a private, became Company A, Forty-ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. Under the common impression that the war would be one of short duration, the men were enlisted for nine months only. Scarcely were they uniformed and armed before they were ordered to the front. The regiment, which at the time was under the command of Col. W. F. Bartlett, served in the First Brigade, First Division, Nineteenth Corps, and participated in some of the hottest battles of the great rebellion.

Mr. Scace, at the time, was but twenty-two years of age, and he remembers well with a beating heart he first fell in line. His regiment was ordered South, directly through the enemy's country, with Baton Rouge as the objective point. After several months of weary marches, during which Company A passed through several lively skirmishes, the enemy constantly hovering about the flanks of the regiment, the city of Louisiana was reached. An evacuation followed. Citizens and the rebel soldiery stationed in the city fled like frightened sheep, bearing with them what goods they could carry and setting torch to the rest. The heavily armed and equipped regiment had been converted into a war prison, had also been fired, and the boys in blue swarmed in, just in time to save their captive comrades from perishing in the flames. Mr. Scace, who had been, while en route, promoted to corporal, was in the thickest of the melee, and describes the scenes in a graphic manner. Although the city had fallen almost without a blow given or received, a fight was not far off, for word was received that a large force of the enemy was fast approaching.

A bloody battle ensued at Plain Store, a few days' march out of the capital, in which Company A was severely wounded. A rebel struck his left thigh and grazing the bone narrowly missed the great artery. He was retired to the camp at Baton Rouge, but recuperated so rapidly that he entered, soon after, into active service. The battles of Port Hudson and Donelsonville followed, with all their thrilling episodes.

Although the war, which, by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, he was honorably discharged. His respite was not a long one, however, for he soon afterward re-enlisted, to serve for the remainder of the war. For meritorious action he had been awarded to the sergeant's stripes, and such was his record in Company A, Sixty-first Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, under Col. Charles F. Weller, during the term of his enlistment Sergeant Scace participated in some of the hottest struggles of the war. A gray-haired veteran to-day recalls the scenes of Hatcher's Run, the fall of Petersburg and the battle of Sailor's Creek.

After his honorable discharge, June 4, 1865, Mr. Scace returned to Albany and settled down once again to his business and social interests. He has resided in the city ever since. It would seem that now, of all times, his peace and happiness would have been uninterrupted. Such was not to be the case, for four years ago, while engaged in superintending the raising of the immense stock of the Albany Electric power house, the lever of a loosened windlass struck him a heavy blow across the back. The effect of the blow was not at first apparent, he being able to leave his bed in a few days. But the worst was to follow, for without warning he was seized with severe rheumatism in all its virulence. Untold agony followed.

Said Mr. Scace, "I could not sleep for the pain. No one will know the tortures the rheumatism gave me. I don't know how I lived during those days. I became little more than skin and bones, and it seemed like life didn't have anything but suffering out of me. I tried every so-called rheumatic cure that was ever invented. I gave all of them a good trial before I stopped taking them. My friends and neighbors recommended remedy after remedy that they heard of, but my rheumatism went on just the same. Well, after I had almost had the life torn out of me, I came across a newspaper account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I thought I might as well add another name to the list as not, so I ordered some of my druggist."

"I tell you, I was glad in those days to hear of anything that could give me any hope at all. Yes, I got them, and before I had taken two boxes that pain began to leave me. Why, I couldn't understand it. I couldn't imagine myself being cured. But before I had taken a half-dozen of those boxes I was cured. The suffering which had made my life almost unbearable for so long had disappeared. I was a new man."

"I began to get strong. I picked up in flesh, and I went back to my business with all the vigor and vim of a young man. I think everyone who knows me will tell you what it did for me. Pink Pills is the greatest medicine ever discovered, and if my recommendation will do it any good I want you to use it. I hope others will hear of it, and be benefited as I have been. Everyone should hear of it. I can't say too much for them," Mr. Scace exclaimed enthusiastically in conclusion.

This is but one of the many cases in which Pink Pills have taken such a beneficial part in the history of humanity.

Mr. Scace is now enjoying the fruits of an unusually large business, managed solely by himself, and covering almost the entire eastern portion of the State. Mr. Scace is also an ivory carver of marked ability, which he follows solely for his own pleasure. Many little trinkets, carved by this veteran soldier, are in great demand, and his skill in this direction is well known.

Far from being solicited to recommend the curative which had taken such a load of misery from his life, in his gratitude his praise for it is unstinted and unceasing. And from his own statements one may easily see that when he does cease to sing his praises, it will be to answer the last uttering in.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of a gripe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by mail).

WAR WITH ENGLAND.

Britain to Collect Debts at Mouth of the Cannon.

Significant Threats Uttered Against the United States by Gilded English Papers—The Cowardly Attitude of American Tories.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—War with England is threatened by the American representatives of the English bondholders and Shylocks, in the event that Bryan is elected. It is not an idle threat. The money power is desperate and will not surrender its clutch on the throats of the American people without a fight. Here are two recent editorial expressions from well-known London newspapers:

"London, Sept. 12.—[Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.]—London newspapers are now more fully realizing the importance of the presidential election in the United States to Great Britain and the continent. The Daily Telegraph says that the American department of the stock exchange is a veritable sick room, because 'English capitalists will never take their interest from the United States in depreciated currency,' and it goes on to say that 'the adoption of bimetalism, or as it would become later, the silver standard, in America, would practically mean the repudiation of their debts, and it is this sort of thing which leads to the withdrawal of envoys and declarations of war.'"

The following is from the London Times and Echo, a paper of enormous circulation, owned by Passmore Edwards, an Englishman of enormous wealth:

"The election of W. J. Bryan—a young man from Nebraska, an impassioned orator, but hitherto an unknown politician—as the democratic candidate for the presidency seals the adherents of the democrats to the silverites. The gravity of the situation can hardly be exaggerated. It is by no means so certain that Mr. Bryan may not be elected, and if he should be, and congress decrees that silver, which is to-day worth half a crown a pound, shall be worth five shillings, and that all national gold bonds shall be paid in silver, there will be war between this country and the United States before this time next year. The great capitalists who forced Gladstone to occupy Egypt will compel any government in office here to declare war against America, sooner than that their holdings of American bonds shall shrink to half values."

Threats of this kind will not deter the American people from rejecting, by an enormous majority, English domination and a British financial system. This is the same England which the United States has on two memorable occasions defeated in war, and there is yet enough manhood in America to defend our homes against English greed and aggression. It is the same old fight over again. The American story, who hung upon our rear and made secret and open war against American liberty, yet exists in New York, Chicago and other great money centers. He yet longs for an American monarchy. He yet believes that the republic is a failure. He does not disguise his hatred of the common people. He is now plotting for the disfranchisement of those who cannot qualify on a property basis. His purse is open to Mark Hanna. His daughter is either married to or scheming for a marriage with an English lord.

If the election of William Jennings Bryan means war with England, we must prepare for war. Bryan will be elected, and in the war which will ensue, the English aristocracy and their American allies, the hereditary Tories of New York and elsewhere, will be wiped out of existence. They never won a fight against American freemen and they never will.

Four Thousand People Greet Him
at South Portsmouth.

"Where Did All These People Come From?"

Thousands of People from Every Direction Flock to South Portsmouth to Get a Glimpse of the Next President.
Noble Service of the M. R. Wells, and Captain Edgington.

Springville, or South Portsmouth, never witnessed such a crowd as gathered there yesterday to get a glimpse of Bryan and, if possible, hear him utter a few words on the great issues of the day.

As early as two o'clock a stream of people set in toward the ferry from this side of the river and came pouring down from the hills of Kentucky.

Long before train time fully four thousand people had gathered about the depot and covering the cars in the yard and every other eminence that would give them an advantage in getting a view of the great leader of the people.

As announced in the Times, free fer-riage was provided for all who wished to take advantage of it, but it was through no courtesy of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad or its millionaire president, M. E. Ingalls. After every effort on the part of the Democratic executive committee was exhausted trying to get C. & O. tickets to carry the crowd across the river and being repulsed and insulted, they abandoned any hope of getting favors or service from that corporation.

Fortunately, the M. P. Wells was lying at the wharf, and her captain, Mr.
Edgington, being a gentleman, was prevailed upon by Dr. McKerrigan, Fred Reider and others to allow the use of that steamer to carry the people across the river. The C. & O. people, seeing that their effort to prevent people from going to see Bryan failed, threatened to have Capt. Edgington arrested for allowing the use of his boat to carry people across. This bluff did not work, however, and the M. P.
Wells made five trips, being loaded down to the guards each time.

As the special train, carrying the illustrious leader of the common people, rolled into the depot, a rousing nalute was fired on this side of the river, and four thousand people sent up a shout that sent the echoes ringing through the Kentucky hills. When Mr. Bryan stepped onto the rear platform, hats and handkerchiefs went into the air and one continuous round of applause greeted him until the train pulled out. He made an effort to speak several times, but his voice was drowned by the boisterous greeting.

The only words he was heard to say was, "Where did all these people come from?" He will probably ask himself the same question when the votes are counted in November, for there is now no doubt that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority.

Some people were a little disappointed because the train did not stop longer, but the fact is, it was not scheduled to stop at all. The train was employed by a committee of gentlemen of Greenup, Vanceburg and Maysville and was in their charge. Mr. Bryan was due in Cincinnati at six o'clock, and it was only through the earnest solicitation of several gentlemen from here and Senator McMillen, of Tennessee, that the train stopped at all.

It was not a little gratifying to the Democrats of Portsmouth to see that more people crossed the river and stood for hours on the other side, just to get a glimpse of Bryan, than the Republicans, with all their rooting, have been able to get out yet this year.

Verdict for Defendant in the O'Hara vs.
Hazelbaker Will Case—Birchfield
$1,000 Damage Suit on Today.

The suit brought by Jas. O'Hara and others vs. Jas. G. Hazelbaker to set aside a will, was heard Friday afternoon. The jury returned a verdict for defendant late in the evening sustaining the will.

Theo. K. Funk, administrator of the estate of Arthur Birchfield, vs.
Portsmouth Street Railroad and Light company, was taken up for hearing today. Birchfield was employed by the Street Railroad company, and while in the discharge of his duties as lineman, received a shock while climbing a pole out near the Harper trestle, causing him to fall and break his neck. Mr.
Funk, as administrator, sues the company for $10,000 damages, alleging that the accident was due to gross carelessness and neglect on the part of the Light company in not having the wires properly insulated.

Johanna Citters vs. Henry Bakeman and Daniel Bakeman is a new partition suit filed in common pleas.

The criminal docket will be disposed of next week.

Hon. J. Nelson Lewis, of Michigan, will address the

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Spiders Are Weaving Webs in the Station
House Cells and Things Are Awful
Dead to the Cops.

Things have been unusually quiet
about the mayor's office the last week.
Fewer arrests have been made than for many weeks past. There seems to be nothing stirring whatever to engage the attention of the police, and they are getting tired of the wearing monotony. Mayor Row has taken advantage of the dull spell and is spending a few days with friends in Cincinnati.

Two drunks were brought in last night. Chris. Hald got too tired to walk and spread himself out in front of Charley Turner's fruit store on Chillicothe street. Officers Harding and Heisel lifted him tenderly into the patrol wagon.

Bill Lewis was overcome by the parade last night and fell by the wayside.
Officer Beatty took him in at 8 p. m.

Henry Holly, the Kentucky storekeeper, on his regular Friday trip to town, drank a little too freely of the O. K. product. He left his horse standing without care for more than six hours and Officer Harding took the animal to Lynn's livery stable. Henry went home and sent after the horse this morning. In addition to the livery bill he will have to pay $4.80 for cruelty to animals.

There is a little sensation brewing up in Officer Williams' ward. The bubble will burst in a few days.

painful accident last evening. He was standing on the corner of Third and Hannabs started across the street and was struck by the wheel. He was thrown violently to the paved streets and when picked up was insensible.

He was carried into Lewis' livery stable and a physician called. He is better today.

Water Works Board Meeting Tuesday
Night Will Be Interesting—Another
Superintendent to Be Named.

Wm. H. Williams, deputy state inspector of workshops and city water works trustee, returned last night from a business trip over about Greenfield.
When asked what was going to be done by the water works board in the matter of electing another superintendent at the water works, he replied that he did not know what action would be taken. As is well known, Barlow refuses to take the job at the reduced salary. There is too much uncertainty about the job for him. In the meantime Superintendent Watkins is going right on with his work, although he was ordered to turn over his keys to one of the streetmen. The board has a meeting Tuesday evening.
